SEELA

Antti Kotilainen | 2018 | Outdoor

When they communicate, it is the best of all possible worlds. Man and nature together, one observes, the other suggests shapes and materials. This extraordinary encounter has led to a lesson in Finnish design. The encounter between Antti Kotilainen and Lapalma has resulted in SEELA, a chair that expresses beauty, with spontaneous contact between wood, polypropylene and steel. The sinuous shell on light bases has an integrated seamless seat-pad. Countless variations. Much serenity.

A small masterpiece of serenity

Outdoor is, above all, a question of sensitivity, the eyes and the soul seeking answers in nature and in its endless shapes. The beauty of Finnish design arises from this tension. And SEELA, a small masterpiece of serenity, is the result of the partnership between Antti Kotilainen and Lapalma. Its base supports are ultra-light, whereas the polypropylene in the colours of rock, ice, snow and wood, is a seamless line extending from the extremely comfortable seat and continuing in the embracing backrest. Disassembled and completely recyclable at the end of its life, SEELA features a perfectly integrated pad that can be replaced over the years, maximizing its life cycle and durability. It is also available in a stool version.
